REV. JOSEPH CODA

November 3, 1918 — March 27, 2020

Fr. Joseph Francis Coda, who at 103 was the oldest priest in the Archdiocese of Newark, was called home to God last Sunday. We at Saint Joseph, Fr. Coda's first parish assignment (he served here from the early '60s until 1972 and returned after retirement to be our weekend assistant), announce his passing with both deep sadness and many fond memories.

Fr. Joe Coda's path to the priesthood was not a typical one. Born in Lodi, NJ, he attended St. Peter's Prep and worked in his family's Coda Market alongside his five brothers and one sister until he was drafted into the Army. According to a 2019 article in The Jersey Journal, while serving overseas, "he became a chaplain's assistant and saw combat firsthand with Patton's Army, 26th division, in the Battle of the Bulge as well as in Luxembourg, Austria, Germany, France and Czechoslovakia." He was awarded a Bronze Star.

In a 2018 article in The Catholic Advocate, Fr. Coda remembered that "someone once said that there are no atheists in foxholes. You see so many people wounded or killed. The fact that you survived makes you feel like you have a guardian angel. You realize God has something in mind for you and it is important to find out what it is."

Initially when Fr. Coda returned to the U.S. in 1946 he prepared for a career in music by attending the Manhattan School of Music and Juilliard. Fr. Coda was gifted with a beautiful baritone voice that delighted all who heard it. Saint Joseph parishioner Linda Korzelius remembers that "his singing voice rang out during Mass and could touch the soul [accompanied by] his good friend, [Saint Joseph Music Director] Bill Ryan."

Despite working for a time as a salesman for the Carnation Company, Fr. Coda finally discovered where his true path lay and he entered Immaculate Conception Seminary in Mahwah. He was ordained on May 25, 1963 at the age of 44.

Once he was a priest, he stated that he "always wanted to be a parish priest." He declined the chance to be a pastor thinking himself too old. "I enjoyed being among the parishioners and the community. They were always so helpful and supportive." And he loved sharing his singing skills at parish events!

We at Saint Joseph who had the chance to know Fr. Coda, attend his Masses, hear his inspirational homilies and his beautiful singing, and benefit from his wit, wisdom and fine example, consider ourselves truly blessed

One can't help but wonder if it were just a coincidence that on the very day Fr. Coda achieved his heavenly reward, a movie entitled "CODA" won the Oscar for best picture. For those of us who knew Fr. Coda, it seems much more like an affirmation of a life truly well-lived—and one that will be greatly missed. Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine on him.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

The divine person Jesus Christ had a complete human nature as well as his nature as God. What was he like in his humanity as we meet him in the Gospels? The late lay theologian Frank Sheed addressed this topic in a number of his works. This article relies on his insights.

Sheed, a native of Australia and law student there, moved to England, where he married Maisie Ward, daughter of a prominent Catholic family. Both took part in the activities of the Catholic Evidence Guild, which defended Catholic beliefs in outdoor settings to all who cared to listen. Together they founded the publishing firm Sheed and Ward. Its branches in London and New York introduced many great European Catholic authors to English-speaking readerships. Frank and Maisie eventually settled in Jersey City and are buried in the city's Holy Name Cemetery.

Mr. Sheed cautions us about seeing the Jesus of the Gospels as being invariably meek and mild, although these qualities are strongly present in him:

Loving-kindness is very far from being the whole picture. His speech is terse and to the point, with no sentimentality at all. Most of what he said would not go very well with most of the statues and paintings.

We are told that he loved "his own" (the apostles) to the end (Jn 13, 1) and had a special affection for one of them, that he had close friends in Martha, Mary and Lazarus, and that he loved the rich young man who declined to follow him because he was attached to his possessions. Jesus praises only a few people: Nathanael, "an Israelite without guile" (Jn 1, 47); a centurion of great faith (Mt 8, 11); a scribe who is "not far from the kingdom" (Mk 12, 34); Mary of Bethany, who "has chosen the better part" (Lk 10, 42); and John the Baptist, of whom he said that "no man born of woman is greater than he" (Lk 7, 28).

Jesus could be very vehement about upholding what was morally right and denouncing what was wrong. To the chief priests and the elders he said that tax collectors and harlots would enter the kingdom of God before them (Mt 21, 31). He compared some of the scribes and Pharisees who opposed him to whitewashed tombs filled with dead men's bones, and, in case that didn't get their attention, he called them a "brood of vipers" (Mt 23, 27•29). And when Peter opposed the Lord's prediction of his passion and death, right after his great act of faith in Jesus, Jesus immediately reprimanded him, saying "Get behind me, Satan" (Mt 16, 23). He also ransacked the tables of the Temple's moneychangers, calling them thieves (Mt 21, 13).

Jesus experienced hunger, weariness and temptation. He also knew the frustration of having followers who were slow to catch on to his teachings, and who sought positions of power for themselves, and, in the case of Judas, the pain of treachery from one of his closest disciples.

There was complexity in Jesus because of his true humanity. This makes him more human. The same is true of his sinlessness. We have probably, at one time or another, excused our moral lapses by saying that we are "only human." But sin makes us less human.
