FROM THE DESK OF FR. JOHN RADWAN

This Sunday Gospel has to be one of the great attention grabbers of the telling of Jesus. It's very strong what Jesus says,
"If anyone comes to me without hating his father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, and even his own life, he cannot be my disciple."

And the first thing you say, "Why is He so strong?" and we might think that Jesus is talking to himself.

When we're children, we used to pray to God for ice-cream cones, bicycles and all these things. And we're always thinking that to follow Jesus, it means that we get the good stuff, because He himself is full of love and caring. And that's true. However, He is looking for something else in his disciples. He is looking for resolution, detachment from everything, total and complete commitment to His life. There comes a time in our life when we must take everything seriously. It's no fooling around. Faith in God is the most important.

I'll give you one example. James Conley grew up in Overland Park, Kansas, a suburb of Kansas City. His father was a building materials salesman and his mother a housewife; he has one adopted sister. The family was Presbyterian and attended church occasionally. While in college, at the University of Kansas, James Conley studied the "Great Books"—favorites included the Confessions of St. Augustine and the writings of Blessed John Henry Newman—and he converted to Catholicism at age 20. His father was "not too happy" about his conversion—he told him he'd given up the freedom of thinking for himself. "Don't do that." And later, when he decided that he would become a Catholic priest, his father was even more upset and said "If you get ordained in that Roman Catholic Church, you're out of this house and I will never see you again." And he was torn. But something deep inside him said, "I must do this." And he did it. And he did it because he felt that he understood the suffering of Jesus and he knew it was the suffering Jesus that was inviting him to come with him into a new world.

James entered the seminary and was ordained as a Catholic Priest. It was a matter of time; both his parents converted to Catholicism themselves in 1991. Fr. James was the same one who administered Baptism and Confirmation to his parents. Soon their son will become Bishop of Lincoln, Nebraska.

What Jesus is saying really is this, he is saying, I give you my life. You give me yours. I give without counting the cost. You give me yours without counting the cost. I give you my life to teach you how to love as I love. You give me your life to receive my love and bring it to other people. I begin a mission. You continue it.

"But, in the continuing of it, I will never, never, be far from you. I will be with you all days, even to the end of the world."

And that's exactly what Jesus is telling his disciples. Yes, you love your mother. Yes, you love your father. But, in choosing me, you must just choose me as your first love. It takes courage. It doesn't take talent — it takes courage. And you've got to have courage to make these kinds of commitments, commitments to your own word. And that's why no one else, besides me, has the right to say my "yes" or "no" to the decision when Jesus says, "Come follow me."

With prayer,
Fr. John Radwan
