A note from Fr. Christian

Wow it's remarkable how it's the Fourth Sunday of Lent already! We're getting so much closer to the great celebration of Easter. The Gospel this weekend is so beautiful and arguably instantly recognizable by its well known verses, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that anyone who believes in him might not perish, but might have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world might be saved through him" (John 3:16-17). John 3:16 is so widely known that it can be seen on billboards along the highway, the sides of buildings, and even in ordinary media. As with all Scripture, there must be something about that passage that deeply resonates with the human heart... and indeed there is.

God's love is so great, his mercy so ever flowing, his heart so big - that out of love for us he wouldn't hold anything back, even if it meant giving his own Son up to suffering and death. If anyone questions whether or not God loves them, all they need to do is look to that very act of Jesus on the cross. God loves each and every one of us as his sons and daughters. There may be times where we might feel unworthy, moments when we haven't lived up to our best, instances of weakness... but even through all of those things, God's love doesn't leave us, but rather, invites us to come even closer to his embrace and experience conversion and forgiveness. Jesus promises new life and restoration to anyone and everyone who turns to him with a sincere heart and makes the decision to follow him. He willingly and happily enters into some of the most broken parts of our life and our world to offer us opportunities to experience healing and grace.

Lent can feel like walking through a desert... our lives can sometimes feel like a desert too. We might be genuinely suffering: this truly may be a time that is really testing our faith and forcing us to dig deep to find meaning in the midst of it all. Yet the unchanging and eternal reality that Jesus is there walking beside and along with you remains true. God loves you. You are wanted. You are blessed.

With prayer,
Fr. Christian

In addition, as representatives of our parish community, our ministers also bring the prayers, support, care, and concern of the parishioners to those they visit.
